

Morgan Lewis

George J. Terwilliger III

partner

Washington, D.C.
1111 Pennsylvania Ave., NW
Washington, DC 20004-2541

George Terwilliger is a partner in the Washington, DC office of Morgan Lewis and co-head of the firm's Global White Collar Practice. Mr.

Terwilliger's experience combines a career in public service with a private practice record of outstanding client results. Mr. Terwilliger's work for clients is supported by a highly experienced practice group in the firm.

practice areas

Litigation

White Collar Litigation & Government Investigations

FCPA/Anticorruption

Cartel Investigations & Litigation: Criminal & Civil

Antitrust

Latin America

Washington Strategic Government Relations and Counseling

bar admissions

District of Columbia

court admissions

U.S. Supreme Court

U.S. Courts of Appeals for the Second, Fourth, and District of Columbia Circuits

U.S. Tax Court

Mr. Terwilliger's clients have included a number of the world's largest companies and most prominent individuals. He has represented energy, telecommunication, financial, and industrial companies in government investigations as well as in civil and criminal litigation. He has also represented prominent business leaders, lawyers, members of Congress, as well as cabinet members and senior appointed officials. Mr. Terwilliger has conducted and supervised global corporate internal investigations, legal compliance reviews, and company-wide legal risk management reviews. He has also represented prominent academic medical centers and other entities in connection with government healthcare fraud investigations.

Mr. Terwilliger served as a presidential appointee in two administrations, first as a U.S. Attorney appointed by President Ronald Reagan, and was then appointed by President George H.W. Bush as Deputy Attorney General, the number two Department of Justice official, and as Acting Attorney General of the United States, capping a 15-year public service career. He has 10 years of experience as a front-line federal prosecutor conducting investigations, trials, and appellate proceedings.

Mr. Terwilliger has also served as counsel to a U.S. Senate investigation, outside general counsel to federal commissions, and confidant and counselor to elected and appointed officials. He was a leader of President George W. Bush's legal team during the 2000 Florida election recount. He remains a hands-on litigator appearing for clients in civil and criminal trial and appellate proceedings.

Mr. Terwilliger is admitted to practice in the District of Columbia and before the U.S. Supreme Court; the U.S. Courts of Appeals for the Second, Fourth, and District of Columbia Circuits; and the U.S. Tax Court.

honors + affiliations

Listed, The Best Lawyers in America

Listed, 100 Most Influential Lawyers in America, The National Law Journal

education

Antioch School of Law, 1978, J.D.

Seton Hall University, 1973, B.A.