

Biography

Caitlin Sutherland has worked for over a decade for nonprofit and advocacy groups and joined Americans for Public Trust in 2020 as their founding Executive Director. Americans for Public Trust is a nonprofit, nonpartisan organization dedicated to restoring trust in government by holding politicians and political groups accountable.

Building on the experience she gained from working as the Research Director of the National Republican Congressional Committee, as well as the Deputy Research Director of Senate Leadership Fund, Sutherland works to uncover and publicize outside money and influence in politics and policy, including tracing foreign dark money.

Sutherland graduated Magna Cum Laude from Saint Mary's College in Notre Dame, Indiana. She resides in Virginia with her husband, children, and their rescue dog Rocket.