

Kevin Morris is a quantitative researcher with the Democracy Program at the Brennan Center for Justice at NYU School of Law, focusing on voting rights and elections. His research focuses on the impact of laws and policies on access to the polls, with a particular focus on rights restoration and voter list maintenance. His scholarly work has been published in journals such as the American Political Science Review and the Urban Affairs Review. Morris is also a doctoral student in the Sociology program at the CUNY Graduate Center. He holds a BA from Boston College in economics and a master's degree in urban planning from NYU's Wagner School, with an emphasis in quantitative methods and evaluation.