

Bio for Kathryn Griffin-Townsend

Kathryn Griffin-Townsend is the founder of We've Been There Done That, a reentry program started with the goal to rehabilitate women who have lived through sex trafficking, prostitution, and associated drug addiction. A former cocaine addict and prostitute, Kathryn credits rehabilitation programs with changing her life. Kathryn has been featured in The Houston Chronicle, ABC News and most recently, The Steve Wilkos Show. Her unabashed, tough love, tell-it-like-it-is style strikes a chord with the women she helps. The program helps to rehabilitate, while also reintegrating them into society and has the highest success rate of former prostitutes not going back to the life.