Herman Beukema Leonard

Herman B. “Dutch” Leonard is George F. Baker, Jr. Professor of Public Management at Harvard’s Kennedy School of Government and faculty Co-Director of the Kennedy School’s Program on Crisis Leadership, and Eliot I. Snider and Family Professor of Business Administration and Co-Chair of the Social Enterprise Initiative at Harvard Business School. He served at the Kennedy School as an Academic Dean from 1992 to 2000. He teaches about leadership, crisis management, organizational strategy, and corporate social responsibility. He is the faculty co-chair of the Kennedy School’s Leadership in Crises executive program, of the General and Flag Officers executive program, of the Leadership in Homeland Security executive program, and of the joint Kennedy School and Harvard Graduate School of Education executive program on crisis management for higher education institutions. He was a member of the World Economic Forum Global Agenda Council on Catastrophic Risk from 2008 to 2012. He has provided advice to numerous international, national, state, provincial, local, nonprofit, and private organizations and executives about risk management and crisis leadership and preparation and recovery. He was a member of the board of directors of Harvard Pilgrim Health Care, a 1.2 million member Massachusetts nonprofit health insurance company, and of the boards of directors of the American Civil Liberties Union of Massachusetts, of the Hitachi Foundation, of the Massachusetts Health and Education Facilities Authority, and of Civic Investments. He is the co-editor and co-author of Managing Crises: Responses to Large Scale Emergencies and co-author of Capitalism at Risk: Rethinking the Role of Business, among other books and articles. He received his PhD in economics in 1979 from Harvard. He enjoys skiing, playing the guitar, hiking, and wildlife.
