

Ken Dunlap

Global Director, Security and Travel Facilitation

Ken Dunlap leads IATA's Global Security and Travel Facilitation group. Based in Washington, D.C., he is responsible for planning and executing the aviation security strategy of the Association on behalf of 230 global airlines. He oversees the policy development and advocacy functions of representatives in North America, Asia, Europe, Latin America and South America. Ken is a leader in developing information sharing and critical infrastructure protection programs for the airline industry. In 2010, he planned and launched IATA's Checkpoint of the Future program. He has testified on global aviation security issues before the United States Senate, House of Representatives and Canadian Parliament. Ken is a member of the US Department of Homeland Security's Aviation Security Advisory Committee (ASAC). Previously, he served as the Vice-Chairman of the Air Line Pilot Association's (ALPA) National Security Committee. He holds a M.A. in National Security Studies and B.A. in Government both from Georgetown University. Ken has logged over 7000+ hours as both a commercial airline and military pilot.
