

Stephen D. Amitay, Esq.

Stephen (“Steve”) Amitay is Executive Director and General Counsel for the National Association of Security Companies (NASCO), the nation’s largest contract security association. Mr. Amitay is also the president of Amitay Consulting, a government affairs firm in Washington D.C.

Since 2006, Mr. Amitay has led NASCO efforts in working with Congress, federal agencies, and the GAO on programs, legislation and issues related to private security in general and specifically the use of private security by the federal government. He has done considerable work related to the FPS Protective Security Officer Program and the TSA Screening Partnership Program. Mr. Amitay also worked the Federal Interagency Security Committee in its development of “Best Practices for Armed Security Officers in Federal Facilities,” as well as with DHS and DOJ on their suspicious activity reporting training for private sector security personnel.

Additionally, for the past thirteen years, Mr. Amitay has represented ASIS International, the world’s largest association of security professionals where he has worked on disaster preparedness, cybersecurity, background check and other issues.

Through his work for NASCO and ASIS International, and as a member of the U.S. Chamber National Security Task Force, Mr. Amitay is involved in many issues at the intersection of government policy and security.

Previously, Mr. Amitay was a professional staff member on the then Senate Governmental Affairs Committee Subcommittee on Government Efficiency, Federalism and D.C. where his work centered on federal government procurement issues.

Mr. Amitay has a B.A. from Columbia University and J.D. from Georgetown University, and is a member of the Maryland and D.C. Bars.
