

Gary Lawkowski is a Senior Fellow for the Council to Modernize Governance. He is also a Senior Fellow with the Institute for Free Speech, on whose behalf he previously testified before the U.S. House of Representatives Committee on Administration, Subcommittee on Elections regarding disinformation, and Counsel at the Dhillon Law Group, where his current practice focuses on political law, election law, administrative law, appellate work, and nonprofit issues.

Before joining the Dhillon Law Group, he served in various capacities at the U.S. Department of the Interior for nearly four years, where he became Counselor to the Secretary. In that capacity, he advised the Secretary and other senior department leaders on complex and sensitive policy and legal matters. He also served as a Senior Policy Advisor at the White House Domestic Policy Council.

Gary has a wealth of experience in campaign finance and political law. He served as counsel at the Federal Election Commission for over four years, including stints with former Chairman Lee Goodman, former Vice Chairman Don McGahn, and, most recently, Commissioner Sean Cooksey. He also served as legal counsel to a national nonprofit organization.

Gary earned his law degree from the University of Virginia School of Law and holds a B.A. in Foreign Affairs and Economics from the University of Virginia.