

TESTIMONY OF ALAN S. JOHNSON, CHIEF ASSISTANT STATE ATTORNEY, 15TH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT, FLORIDA

My name is Alan Johnson. I'm Chief Assistant State Attorney, 15th Judicial Circuit in and for Palm Beach County, Florida. One of my duties is to supervise both the civilian and law enforcement sides of the Palm Beach County Sober Homes Task Force.

As we succeed in arresting and prosecuting rogue providers and shuttering corrupt facilities, we have seen the criminal element leave Palm Beach County for other communities that may not be aware of the Florida Shuffle. We have held training sessions for prosecutors and law enforcement officials throughout Florida and we're offering our assistance to other jurisdictions throughout the country. Our Task Force has also worked with the U.S. Attorney's Office for the Southern District of Florida to target insurance fraud, which led to the recent federal conviction and 27 year prison sentence for drug treatment and sober homes kingpin Kenneth Chapman.

However, there are a number of roadblocks facing local, state and federal prosecutors in effectively combating these abuses. The following are several concrete steps that can close loopholes in the law, protect the vulnerable patients with substance use disorder from exploitation, and assist prosecutors in their efforts to reign in the corruption that has plagued the treatment industry.

EXPAND THE FEDERAL ANTI-KICKBACK STATUTE (AKS) TO INCLUDE PRIVATELY FUNDED TREATMENT:

Federal law prohibits offering or paying, soliciting or receiving, anything of value (i.e., kickbacks) for patient referrals. Currently, the Federal Anti-Kickback Statute only applies to schemes involving federally assisted programs, such as Medicare and Medicaid. Patient brokering abuses, regardless of whether the insurance is public or private, hurts patients and increases the cost of health care to everyone. Kickback schemes can freeze competing suppliers, cause overutilization of services, harm competition and the freedom of choice. Anti-kickback statutes, both state and federal, are designed to prevent (1) corruption of medical judgments, (2) overutilization of services –unnecessary billing, (3) unfair competition, (4) increased costs to the system and (5) patient steering.

In other words, the same public purpose behind the AKS applies equally to both federally funded and private treatment. Currently, federal law enforcement and prosecutors have only limited jurisdiction to investigate and prosecute bad actors defrauding private insurance programs. Federal prosecutors are limited in their ability to prosecute corrupt marketers and patient brokers whose schemes do not involve federally-assisted programs. The private industry-wide fraud has been estimated in the billions of dollars. The human cost of substandard care motivated by greed is incalculable. We ask that this committee explore an amendment to the AKS that would bring this law enforcement tool to bear on the rampant exploitation occurring in the private pay sector of substance use disorder treatment. At a minimum, jurisdiction should be extended to private insurance contracts obtained through the ACA exchanges.

Local and state law enforcement agencies cannot fight this battle alone, especially against well funded regional and national criminal networks.

MODIFY THE BONA FIDE EMPLOYEE (BFE) SAFE HARBOR WITHIN THE AKS.

There are a number of exceptions to the AKS (adopted by most state patient brokering statutes) that create safe harbors for treatment facilities. One such safe harbor is the Bona Fide Employee exception (BFE). Hiring an employee is often used as a method to disguise kickback schemes. Under the Bona-fide Employee Exception, the AKS does not prohibit, “...any amount paid by an employer to an employee (who has a bona fide employment relationship with such employer) for employment in the provision of covered items or services [.]” 42 USC § 1320a-7b(b)(3)(B).

According to a 1991 OIG opinion, the thinking behind this safe harbor is that the employer-employee relationship is unlikely to be abusive, in part because the employer is generally fully liable for the actions of its employees and is therefore more motivated to supervise and control them. Our experience shows the opposite; many employers are fully invested in the brokering schemes, oftentimes hiring recovering addicts to put “heads in the beds.” We ask that the current BFE be amended to exclude employees from being paid bonuses or commissions based on the value or volume of referrals that they generate.

In addition, we ask that the phrase, “...for employment in the provision of covered items or services” be clarified to mean that any payment to an employee must be for the performance of services that are actually covered by insurance. While the current wording of the statute is clear to us, Federal Courts continue to disagree as to the meaning of this phrase.

Another safe harbor, Personal Services and Management Agreements (PSM), applies to contractual relationships with third party persons or entities. Requirements found in this safe harbor should be made applicable to the BFE exception as well. They include the following:

- 1- The agency agreement is set out in writing and signed by the parties.

- 2- The agency agreement covers all of the services the agent provides to the principal for the term of the agreement and specifies the services to be provided by the agent.
- 3- The aggregate compensation paid to the agent over the term of the agreement is set in advance, is consistent with fair market value in arms-length transactions and is not determined in a manner that takes into account the volume or value of any referrals or business otherwise generated between the parties.
- 4- The services performed under the agreement do not involve the counseling or promotion of a business arrangement or other activity that violates any State or Federal law.
- 5- The aggregate services contracted for do not exceed those which are reasonably necessary to accomplish the commercially reasonable business purpose of the service.

42 CFR 1001.952 (emphasis added)

The above requirements for the PSM safe harbor are designed to promote transparency and discourage patient brokering abuses. This reasoning applies equally to employees and may be applied to the BFE safe harbor by simply switching the words “agency” and “agent” to “employment” and “employee.” It should be noted that any treatment provider will be able to hire and maintain employees without adhering to these requirements; however, if that employee violates the AKS or state equivalent patient brokering statute, they may not use the safe harbor as an affirmative defense.

ENHANCE FEDERAL ENFORCEMENT OF CIVIL AND CRIMINAL INTERSTATE MARKETING FRAUD

One of the many contributors to fraud and abuse in the private treatment side of the opioid crisis is false and misleading advertising. Millions of dollars are spent to gain placement, particularly for on-line internet access, to create a funnel from one part of the country to treatment destinations such as Florida, Arizona, Texas and California. In many cases, phone numbers and maps of legitimate providers are hijacked by unscrupulous marketers. On-line positioning in one geographic area can mislead the caller into thinking a facility is local, when the local number is in reality a Trojan horse, answered by a lead generator and sold downstream to the highest bidder. These phone calls are extremely valuable. In some cases, a downstream lead generated call may cost a facility or marketer over $1,000 or more, once insurance is validated.

Florida recently passed landmark legislation to reign in some of the abusive practices in the marketing of addiction services. HB 807 included new deceptive and fraudulent marketing practices statutes, recognizing vulnerable consumers and their families are at risk of being victimized by practices that adversely impact the delivery of health care. False or misleading statements or information about a provider or operator's products, goods, services or geographical location marketed on advertising materials, in media or on its website are now violations of state civil and criminal law.

While Florida has prohibited false and misleading advertising, the reality is that many of these fraudulent marketers are operating on a regional or national level. Jurisdiction and investigatory limitations severely hinder effective state action. Lack of resources is also a problem. Local law enforcement is not equipped to investigate large marketing firms operating over state lines. Holding abusive interstate marketers and marketing systems to task, both civilly and criminally, should be made a priority of the appropriate federal agencies.

CLARIFY THE AMERICANS WITH DISABILITIES ACT (ADA) AND THE FAIR HOUSING AMENDMENTS ACT OF 1988 (FHAA) TO PROTECT RESIDENTS OF SOBER HOMES

In 2016, there were 4,661 opioid overdose responses by Fire Rescue in Palm Beach County alone; 552 of them resulting in death. Many, if not most of the calls, were to sober homes.

The Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA) and the Fair Housing Amendments Act (FHAA) limit government oversight of sober homes that house persons recovering from Substance Use Disorder (SUD). When President Reagan signed the FHAA, he added people with disabilities to the classes protected by the nation's Fair Housing Act (FHA). The amendments recognized that many people with disabilities need a community residence in order to live in the community like a family as an alternative to institutionalization. SUD is a recognized disability under the ADA and FHAA. However, unlike other disabilities, a person suffering from SUD is not protected under Federal Law if he or she is actively using controlled substances. In no other instance is a disability conditioned on the actions of the disabled. This is an important distinction when applying protections for persons with SUDs. The nature of the disease creates a circumstance whereby the disabled are vulnerable and easily exploited or manipulated. The need for standards in community housing for this vulnerable class must be considered when applying Federal Law.

Because of a lack of oversight, the majority of sober homes in Palm Beach County are little more than flop houses. Many are owned or operated by convicted felons, are in crime ridden neighborhoods with drug dealers literally next door. Other than voluntary certification with the non-profit organization, Florida Association of Recovery Residences (FARR), there is little or no protection for this vulnerable class. Enforcing criminal laws and municipal code enforcement is reactive and ineffective in protecting sober home residents.

Local and State governments do not have the right to ban or refuse reasonable accommodation in the enforcement of local codes and ordinances. However, there needs to be an acknowledgement that some oversight is necessary for the health and safety of the sober home residents.

There is a type of sober home that is recognized by Congress, called Oxford House. Oxford houses are residences that are chartered by a non-profit, national organization that applies strict rules and conditions attendant upon residence. These rules include, in part, sobriety, collective self governance and good neighbor policies. Oxford House is listed by SAMSHA on the National Registry of Evidenced-based Programs and Practices (NREPP).

In addition, there is a national organization, the National Alliance of Recovery Residences (NARR), that has developed model rules and standards for sober homes that have been adopted by various state non-profit certifying entities. In Florida, the Florida Association of Recovery Residences (FARR) has been authorized by statute and through designation by the appropriate executive department, to certify recovery residences. Certification requires quality standards, including core principals of a recovery based drug free environment, management by a certified recovery residence administrator, a good neighbor policy, ethics and safety standards, resident rights and obligations as well as a displacement policy when a resident materially violates these standards. The Florida legislature has made FARR certification voluntary, in large measure to avoid liability under the ADA and FHAA. Most sober homes remain uncertified.

As previously stated, SUD is a unique disability. Persons with SUD are extremely vulnerable to manipulation and abuse. This is especially true when they have actively used in the recent past. Most sober home residents are currently participating in active intensive out-patient treatment programs. Some have recently completed treatment and are vulnerable to relapse. The lack of standards in housing has strongly contributed to the recycling of SUD patients in and out of treatment. Safe and sober housing is the key to long term sobriety. It should be noted that sober homes are residences only, that is, no treatment is performed in the house.

The proliferation of sub-standard sober homes must be addressed at the federal level. We recommend that states be given the ability to require certification under NARR or similar standards, or other recognized programs such as Oxford House to protect the vulnerable residents living in sober homes. Clarification of the ADA and FHAA can also be achieved through administrative changes to the CFR applicable to group homes housing persons considered disabled due to SUD.
