

Renee Bracey Sherman is a reproductive justice activist, abortion storyteller, and writer. She is the founder and executive director of We Testify, an organization dedicated to the leadership and representation of people who have abortions and share their stories at the intersection of race, class, and gender identity. Her writing has been featured in the New York Times, Washington Post, and dozens of other news outlets, and her work has been profiled in Harper's Bazaar and Business Insider for her groundbreaking activism. She is also an executive producer of Ours to Tell, an award-winning documentary elevating the voices of people who've had abortions, and the co-author of the forthcoming book Countering Abortionsplaining from Harper Collins. Ms. Bracey Sherman earned her bachelor's degree in economics from Northeastern Illinois University and her master's degree in public administration from Cornell University.