President and CEO

425 Third Street, S.W., Suite 1150
Washington, D.C. 20024

Dear Mr. Dinneen:

Thank you for agreeing to testify on Tuesday, July 23, 2013, at 9:45 a.m. in 2123 Rayburn House Office Building, at the Subcommittee on Energy and Power hearing entitled "Overview of the Renewable Fuel Standard: Stakeholder Perspectives."

In this Subcommittee's June 26, 2013, hearing entitled "Overview of the Renewable Fuel Standard – Government Perspectives," the Environmental Protection Agency, Energy Information Administration, and Department of Agriculture all concurred that the RFS faces near-term implementation challenges, particularly in 2014. In addition, many commenters to the Committee's white paper series on the RFS noted these challenges.

You are scheduled to testify on the first panel, which will address fuel production issues – the economic, technological, and environmental challenges of the RFS as it relates to producing the nation's transportation fuels.

The purpose of this hearing is to solicit stakeholder input on the current status of RFS implementation, with a particular focus on potential modifications to the program that would help avert emerging problems and maintain its long-term viability. Please address these potential modifications in your testimony.

The attached documents provide important details concerning the preparation and presentation of your testimony.
