Paul Nahi is the President and CEO of Enphase Energy, Inc., a leading global solar energy technology company. Since 2007, he has led Enphase Energy from pioneering the world's first microinverter to becoming a global provider of energy management solutions. Previous to Enphase, Nahi served as the CEO of Crimson Microsystems, a fabless semiconductor company for the telecommunications industry. Before Crimson, he was the CEO and co-founder of the semiconductor company, Accelerant Networks, subsequently acquired by Synopsis, Inc. He has participated as a Technology Pioneer at the World Economic Forum Annual Meetings in Davos, and has developed initiatives for the Clinton Global Initiative. Nahi earned a Bachelor of Science degree in Computer Science and an M.B.A. from the University of Southern California, and serves as a member of the Board of Advisors for USC's Viterbi School of Engineering.
