

Dr. Amol Phadke is a Staff Scientist, Lead of the India Research Program, and Deputy of the International Energy Analysis Department, Energy Analysis and Environmental Impacts Division at Lawrence Berkeley National Laboratory.

He is an Affiliate and Senior Scientist at the Goldman School of Public Policy, University of California, Berkeley.

Currently, his research is focused on electrification of heavy duty vehicles, grid scale storage, and deep decarbonization of the power and transport sectors.

Amol has published over 80 journal articles, research reports, and conference papers. His work has been featured in The Guardian, The New York Times, The Times of India, Economic Times, The Hindu, Nature Magazine and numerous other publications. Amol regularly advises national governments, utilities, and regulators on energy policies and programs. Amol has a Bachelor of Engineering degree from Government College of Engineering, Pune, India, and a M.S. and Ph.D. from the Energy and Resources Group, from UC Berkeley.