Charles Johnson BIO

Entrepreneur, advocate for change and philanthropist... Charles is a graduate of Florida A& M University. He is a native of Atlanta who has spent his entire career being an entrepreneur in many different areas, such as governmental contracts, global sourcing and jointly being a small business owner with his wife, Kira. He is a strong advocate of supporting our youth and in turn has played a vital role in organizations like Boys Speak Out, Inc.; a nonprofit that focuses on tutoring, mentoring and advocating being a role model while making a difference in our youth's lives.

After the sudden passing of his wife Kira due to complications following a routine scheduled C-section, Charles has dedicated his life mission to launching the 4Kira4Moms Foundation. A nonprofit committed to reducing the maternal mortality rate and raising awareness about the maternal death crisis in the United States where we have over 1200 women die annually. Currently, 4Kira4Moms is working closely with congressional legislators to create legislation to mandate healthcare policies nationwide that will protect mothers and babies. In addition, we are working with other organizations, like Moms Rising, to bring voice to preventable deaths in childbirth and pregnancies.
