

Huge Surge in Clinicians Taking MAT Waiver Training

Nearly 45,000 clinicians have taken the MAT waiver course through PCSS in the past three years.

A recent survey of MAT waiver participants asked why they took the waiver course...

83% said they needed to know MORE about the topic

48% said they required MORE knowledge and skills

“Education and training can help to improve individual knowledge and skills, but more systematic implementation strategies are needed to integrate a new practice into routine care in a way that is sustainable within the organization.”

--Aimee Campbell, PhD, Associate Professor of Clinical Psychiatric Social Work in the Department of Psychiatry at the Columbia University Medical Center

In a PCSS survey, the four barriers to treating OUD most frequently include:

1. comfort level treating OUD
2. concern for patient misuse, including patient diversion
3. access to behavioral health
4. added record keeping requirements
