

Leslie V. Gordon

Ms. Leslie V. Gordon is a Director at the U.S. Government Accountability Office (GAO) where she leads the agency's work overseeing the Medicare program and health information technology. Most recently, Leslie has led work on private equity ownership of nursing homes, oversight of Medicare providers during the COVID-19 pandemic, Medicare telehealth, and Medicare Advantage. She joined GAO in 2000 and her work on Medicare and Medicaid program integrity and Medicare payments helped prompt agency and congressional actions that resulted in billions of dollars in federal savings. Prior to joining GAO, Leslie was a Project Director and Research Instructor at the National Center for Education in Maternal and Child Health. Leslie holds a master's degree in Public Policy from Georgetown University's McCourt School of Public Policy and a bachelor's degree in American Studies and Computer Applications from the University of Notre Dame.
