MBA Middle Tennessee State University, 1998
BS University of Alabama, 1992

Glenn Richey is Harbert Eminent Scholar in supply chain management, chair of the department of supply chain management, and research director in the Center for Supply Chain Innovation (CSCI) at Auburn University. His role is to help advance supply chain management research and outreach in the Harbert College of Business at Auburn University. Richey engages in industry-based research and enjoys building research and student relationships between academia and practice. In addition to his formal education, Richey has an executive certificate in international business from the University of South Carolina. Prior to entering academia, Richey worked for ten years in managerial positions across several functional areas including procurement, sales, retail consulting, finishing/manufacturing, warehousing, and logistics/supply chain operations for two companies: Scott Paper Co. and Genuine Parts Co.

Richey has published over 90 articles in peer-reviewed scholarly journals since 2003. He has won numerous awards for his research, including the Cavusgil Award for the best contribution to international marketing in Journal of International Marketing and the LaLonde award for the best contribution in supply chain management and logistics in the Journal of Business Logistics. Richey has also been awarded multiple graduate and undergraduate teaching awards. Notably, he received the Outstanding Faculty Award for teaching in the Harbert College of Business and the University of Alabama's top teaching award—the National Alumni Association Outstanding Commitment to Teaching Award.

Richey has taught across six continents as a visiting professor and research associate at many universities including BEM Dakar, (Senegal), Bilkent University (Turkey), Bond University (Australia), Donghua University (China), University of Ghent (Belgium), Istanbul Technical University (Turkey), KEDGE (Bordeaux and Marseilles, France), Koç University (Turkey), Mediterranean School of Business (Tunisia), University of Bath (UK), University of Edinburgh (Scotland) and University of Zagreb (Croatia). He has led study abroad trips to countries including Argentina, Australia, Brazil, Belgium, Chile, China, Columbia, Croatia, the Netherlands, Panama, Peru, Greece, South Africa, Spain, and Turkey.

Richey currently is the Editor-in-Chief at Journal of Business Logistics (with Dr. Beth Davis-Sramek) and Associate Editor at the Journal of Supply Chain Management. Richey received Emerald Publishing's Leading Editor Award as co-editor of IJPDLM (with Dr. Alex Ellinger) in 2013. He has served on several editorial review boards including Decision Sciences, Journal of World Business, Industrial Marketing Management, Supply Chain Management: An International Journal, International Journal of Physical Distribution & Logistics Management (IJPDLM), and International Journal of Logistics Management. He is a past senior and associate editor at Decision Sciences Journal and Journal of World Business. His industry service efforts extend across many state, local, and national organizations.

When taking a break from loving his job, Richey enjoys travel and downtime with his wife (Suzanne), his sons (Rob & Max), and a pair of way too active border collies.
