Biography

David M. Wulf Deputy Assistant Secretary

Mr. David Wulf joined the Department of Homeland Security in July 2011 and currently serves as the Acting Deputy Assistant Secretary for Infrastructure Protection. In this role, he works closely with government and private sector partners on the national effort to reduce the risk to nation's critical infrastructure posed by acts of terrorism as well as to strengthen national preparedness, timely response, and rapid recovery in the event of an incident.

Prior to serving as the Acting Deputy Assistant Secretary, Mr. Wulf served as the Director of the Infrastructure Security Compliance Division (ISCD). ISCD leads the national implementation of the Chemical Facility Anti-Terrorism Standards (CFATS) program. In executing this regulatory compliance framework, Mr. Wulf's team of security specialists and inspectors assesses high-risk chemical facilities, promotes collaborative security planning, and ensures that covered facilities meet risk-based performance standards.

Mr. Wulf has overseen the maturation of the CFATS program in a number of areas and, as co-Chair of the G7 Global Partnership's Chemical Security Working Group, he has played a key role in building a truly-global chemical-security community and sharing "best practices" with developing nations striving to build their own cultures of chemical security.

Prior to joining DHS, Mr. Wulf held a number of positions at the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco, Firearms and Explosives (ATF), serving as Chief of the Bureau's Office of Regulatory Affairs Director of the National Center for Explosives Training and Research (NCETR), and ATF's Senior Counsel for Field Operations. He also served as Acting Deputy Assistant Director of ATF's Office of Public and Governmental Affairs.

Raised in Massachusetts, Mr. Wulf received his Bachelor of Arts in Government and History from Georgetown University and his law degree from the Emory University School of Law.
