Mr. Matthew (Matt) Fridley is the Corporate Manager-Safety, Health, and Security for Brenntag North America, a chemical distribution company headquartered in Reading, Pennsylvania. Brenntag is currently the largest chemical distributor in the world and the second largest chemical distributor in the United States.

In his current role, Mr. Fridley is responsible for environmental, health, safety, and security compliance at each of Brenntag North America's more than 180 U.S. facilities serving customers in all 50 states. He is tasked with managing the Department of Homeland Security's Chemical Facility Anti-Terrorism Standards program for all Brenntag facilities in the U.S. Mr. Fridley has over 20 years' experience in the chemical industry and holds a BS in Biological Sciences from Southern Illinois University.

Mr. Fridley is the current Chairman of the Chemical Sector Coordinating Council (CSCC), an industry-led group that acts as a liaison for the chemical sector with its government counterparts at all levels through the Chemical Government Coordinating Council. Prior to serving as CSCC Chairman, he served as the CSCC Vice Chairman in 2018.

Additionally, Mr. Fridley currently serves as the Vice Chairman for the National Association of Chemical Distributors' (NACD) Regulatory Affairs Committee, Chairman for the NACD Security Subcommittee, and Chairman for the Security Committee for the Chlorine Institute.

Mr. Fridley is also a member of the U.S. Delegation that participates in the G7 Global Partnership on Chemical Security Working Group as well as the Global Congress on Chemical Security.
