Tanvi Madan

Director, The India Project & Senior Fellow, Foreign Policy
The Brookings Institution

Tanvi Madan is a senior fellow in the Project on International Order and Strategy in the Foreign Policy program, and director of The India Project at the Brookings Institution. Her work explores India's role in the world and its foreign policy, focusing in particular on India's relations with China and the United States. Madan also researches the intersection between Indian energy policies and its foreign and security policies.

Madan is the author of the book Fateful Triangle: How China Shaped US-India Relations during the Cold War (Brookings Institution Press, 2020), as well as the recent paper “Managing China: Competitive Engagement, with Indian Characteristics” (Brookings Foreign Policy’s Global China series, 2020), and “The Pitfalls and Promise of a US-India Partnership Driven by China” in the Financial Times.

Madan’s forthcoming publications include “US-India Relations” for the Oxford Research Encyclopedia on American History. She is also currently completing a monograph on India’s foreign policy diversification strategy, and researching her next book on the China-India-US triangle.

Previously, Madan was a Harrington doctoral fellow and teaching assistant at the Lyndon B. Johnson School of Public Affairs at the University of Texas at Austin. Prior to that, she was a research analyst at Brookings. In the past, Madan has also worked in the information technology industry in India.

Madan has authored a number of publications on India’s foreign policy and been cited by media outlets such as the Associated Press, the Economist, the Financial Times, The New York Times, The Wall Street Journal, and The Washington Post. Madan has also appeared on a number of news shows including on the ABC Australia, BBC, CBS, Channel NewsAsia, CNBC, Fox News, India Today TV, NDTV, NPR, and PBS.

In addition to a Ph.D. in public policy from the University of Texas at Austin, she has a master’s degree in international relations from Yale University and a bachelor’s degree with honors in history from Lady Shri Ram College (Delhi University), India.
