

November 16, 2017
The Honorable Gary D. Cohn
Director, National Economic Council
The White House
1600 Pennsylvania Ave. NW
Washington DC 20500

Dear Mr. Cohn,

As business owners, aquariums, and local chambers of commerce that benefit from our national monuments and the public lands and waters they protect we write to express our serious concerns with the review and recommendations of national monument designations conducted by the Department of the Interior. We urge you to advise President Trump to leave all existing national monuments intact, both in terms of their borders and the protections within.

As you well know, business certainty is essential for continued success. The recommendations – which include significant changes to national monument designations – are already impacting our communities and businesses. Our businesses depend on national monuments and the permanent protections they provide to our public lands and waters to draw tourism, grow property values, attract and recruit employees and otherwise sustain and grow our businesses.

As you know, decisions regarding where to locate a business are not taken lightly. For many of us, the decision to locate and invest in our communities was based on the promise that national monuments are permanently protected. Knowing that they would continue to benefit our bottom lines in perpetuity provided the certainty needed to invest for the future. Not only did the review itself create uncertainty, but the leaked recommendations in the press include legally dubious executive actions that are certain to spark costly and protracted litigation likely to limit our ability to make investments for years to come.

Contrary to what you may have heard, national monument designations provide a host of economic benefits for local communities. Recent studies have demonstrated increased visibility, visitation, spending and local and state tax revenues following the designation of a national monument. We have all witnessed these and many other secondary benefits in our own businesses. The fear of seeing the driver of this progress diminished or marred has created tremendous anxiety for our communities.

An attack on one national monument is an attack on all national monuments. The unprecedented nature of rolling back protections for an existing national monument – whether it is in our backyards or across the country – would very likely introduce uncertainty into our markets. Regardless of the immediate status of any particular monument, once these actions are undertaken, business leaders will not be able to count on benefits the permanence of a national monument currently brings.

This is not a matter of conservation versus economic development, but rather economic development dependent on conservation. The businesses signed onto this letter are a testament to the reality that smart ocean and public lands conservation like national monuments is good for our economy. These real tangible economic benefits are why so many of us supported these designations in the first place and skeptics have now been converted by the benefits we have seen.

We the undersigned 572 businesses, aquariums, and chambers of commerce urge you to stand up for our national monuments by helping to end the job-killing efforts to roll back our national monuments or the Antiquities Act which first made these beneficial protections possible.

Sincerely,

CC:

Secretary, The U.S. Department of the Interior, Ryan Zinke
