

Randall Luthi became Chief Energy Adviser to Governor Mark Gordon on July 15, 2019. Immediately prior to that appointment, he was President of the National Ocean Industries Association (NOIA).

Luthi also served on the Department of the Interior's Royalty Policy Committee for two years. The Committee advised the Secretary of the Interior on policy and strategies to improve management of the federal and American Indian mineral revenue program.

An attorney and rancher from Freedom, Wyoming, Luthi has a background in government service and the private sector. Before joining NOIA, Luthi served as the Director of the Minerals Management Service (MMS) at DOI from July 2007 through January 2009. There he oversaw offshore lease sales and collection and distribution to the States and Federal government of mineral revenues and royalties. He also oversaw the expansion of a renewable energy office at MMS, (now the Bureau of Ocean Energy Management, Bureau of Safety and Environmental Enforcement and Office of Natural Resources Revenue), which manages development of energy and collection of royalties in the U.S. oceans.

Immediately before directing MMS, Luthi served as the Deputy Director of the Department's Fish and Wildlife Service (FWS). Luthi has also served as an attorney at both the Department of the Interior (DOI) and the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration (NOAA).

In 2000, Luthi started the law firm of Luthi & Voyles, LLC, in Thayne, Wyoming, which helped pay for his working ranch which consists of a cow/calf operation and the growing of hay and barley.

Luthi's career in the Wyoming House of Representatives began in 1995. He served as Speaker of the House in 2005 and 2006.
