

Biography: Kevin Dahl

Kevin Dahl has served as Arizona Senior Program Manager for National Park Conservation Association (NPCA) for more than a decade. NPCA is America's leading advocate for the protection and enhancement of our National Park System. Prior to NPCA, Kevin was executive director of Native Seeds/SEARCH, a regional group working to preserve the genetic diversity of Southwestern Native American crops. He was also executive director of the Tucson Audubon Society, and Natural Resources Superintendent for Pima County's Parks and Recreation Department. An alumnus of both the University of Arizona and Arizona State University, his interest in plants led him to obtain his degree in ethnobotany from Prescott College. Kevin is author of Wild Plants of the Sonoran Desert, published by the Arizona-Sonora Desert Museum, and Native Harvest: Authentic Southwestern Gardening, published by the Western National Parks Association. He serves on the board of directors of Friends of Saguaro National Park.
