

Matt McCombs serves as Colorado's State Forester and the Director of the Colorado State Forest Service. Prior to that role, he served in a variety of leadership roles in WA, CO and NC for the USDA Forest Service, beginning as a Presidential Management Fellow in 2008. His career has spanned both natural resources and forest management, as well as other government work, having served as an aide to members of Congress in both Colorado and Montana.

McCombs is also a veteran, having deployed to Iraq in 2003 as a combat medic with the Colorado Army National Guard and serving as a Medical Service Officer in the Montana Air National Guard, where he achieved the rank of captain before leaving the service in 2012.
