

Major Bill Holcomb grew up in Tampa, Florida, spending much of his time fishing and enjoying the outdoors. He attended Eckerd College in St Petersburg, receiving his bachelor's degree in business management and has a master's degree in criminal justice from Florida State University. Major Holcomb graduated from the Florida Fish and Wildlife Conservation Commission's Law Enforcement Academy in 2005. For the past 20 years, he has served as a conservation law enforcement officer and has been promoted through the ranks to major, where he currently serves as Section Leader of Boating and Waterways. Major Holcomb also served for more than 15 years as a member of the agency's Special Operations Group, as both a team leader and team commander. He is also a graduate of the National Association of Conservation Law Enforcement Chiefs Academy and the FDLE Executive Leadership Program.
