Police have charged an illegal alien with a lengthy arrest record in the death of a 41-year-old woman who was allegedly stabbed Monday at a Virginia bus stop.

Abdul Jalloh, 32, has been charged with second-degree murder in connection with the death of Stephanie Minter, the Fairfax County Police Department (FCPD) said in a press release. Officers from the FCPD responded to Richmond Highway and Arlington Drive in Hybla Valley at 7:16 p.m. Monday. They discovered Minter with multiple stab wounds to her upper body at the bus stop shelter and attempted life-saving measures before she was pronounced dead on scene.

Detectives from the Major Crimes Bureau took over the investigation and through surveillance footage and interviews, they identified Jalloh as the last person to be seen with Minter, according to the same release. The suspect was seen exiting the bus with Minter at Richmond Highway and Arlington Drive. Officers located Jalloh the following day when they responded to a call about a suspicious person after an employee spotted the suspect entering a business and contacted police. Police linked Jalloh to an alleged larceny that occurred earlier in the day and arrested and transported him to the Fairfax County Adult Detention Center. The suspect was charged with petit larceny and is being held on no bond, police said.

Detectives linked Jalloh to Minter's death and obtained a warrant to charge him Wednesday.

Jalloh is from Sierra Leone and entered the U.S. illegally in 2012, the Department of Homeland Security (DHS) said in a recent press release. Immigration and Customs Enforcement (ICE) lodged a detainer against Jalloh in 2020 and he was granted a final order of removal by a judge who “found he could be removed to any country other than Sierra Leone,” according to the same press release.

“This heinous criminal is a perfect example of why we need cooperation from sanctuary jurisdictions and the importance of third country removals for the safety of the American people,” DHS Deputy Assistant Secretary Lauren Bis said.

One rider who uses the bus stop at Richmond Highway and Arlington Drive spoke to NBC 4 Washington, calling Minter’s death a “tragedy.”

“It’s like a tragedy. It’s a public area. There’s kids around here,” the rider, who asked not to be identified, said. “Makes you feel kind of wary of just heading to work.”

Minter's death is not the first crime Jalloh has been linked to.

Records from the Fairfax County General District Court indicate Jalloh has a lengthy criminal history dating back to 2017, with previous charges including identity theft, possession of marijuana, rape by force/threat, disorderly conduct, and malicious wounding. In addition to his recent petit larceny charge, Jalloh was also charged with petit larceny in 2023, according to the same records.

Former Virginia Attorney General Jason Miyares slammed Fairfax County Commonwealth Attorney Steve Descano and said innocent people are suffering as a result of his policies in a statement he shared on X.

"30 prior arrests and 5 prior felony malicious wounding charges since 2023 alone. Once again the innocent suffer when 'catch and release' policies by leftwing prosecutors get in charge. This is 100% on Steve Descano, and why he's so despised by the @FairfaxCountyPD," Miyares wrote.

The Daily Caller contacted the FCPD, and a spokesperson directed us to the same press release when asked to comment on the case.
