

THOMAS G. HUNGAR

Thomas G. Hungar is a partner in the Washington, D.C., office of Gibson, Dunn & Crutcher LLP. His practice focuses on appellate litigation, and he assists clients with congressional investigations and complex trial court litigation matters as well. He has presented oral argument before the Supreme Court of the United States in 26 cases, and has also appeared before numerous lower federal and state courts.

Mr. Hungar previously served as General Counsel of the U.S. House of Representatives, providing legal advice and representation on a non-partisan basis to the House and its leadership, members, officers, and staff, and working closely with House committees on oversight and investigative activities. He also served in the U.S. Department of Justice as Deputy Solicitor General. In that position, he supervised business-related appellate litigation for the federal government, with responsibility for antitrust, banking, bankruptcy, communications, copyright, government contracts, labor, patent, securities, tax, trade, and trademark matters. In private practice, Mr. Hungar's appellate experience has encompassed those areas as well as administrative procedure, constitutional law, class actions, employment law, product liability, insurance coverage and bad faith, and general commercial litigation.

Mr. Hungar is a Fellow of the American Academy of Appellate Lawyers and is a frequent lecturer in his areas of expertise. He previously served as an Assistant to the Solicitor General and as a law clerk to Associate Justice Anthony M. Kennedy of the Supreme Court and Circuit Judge Alex Kozinski of the United States Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit. He received his law degree from Yale Law School, where he was a Senior Editor of the Yale Law & Policy Review. He received his bachelor of science degree magna cum laude in mathematics/computer science and economics from Willamette University.