

John Villasenor Biography

John Villasenor is a professor at UCLA, where he has faculty appointments in electrical engineering, law, public policy, and management. He founded and serves as a faculty co-director of the UCLA Institute for Technology, Law, and Policy. He is also a nonresident senior fellow at the Brookings Institution and a member of the Council on Foreign Relations. Professor Villasenor's work addresses the intersection of technology and law in relation to artificial intelligence, digital communications, computing and networking, cybersecurity, and privacy. He has published extensively in technology and law academic journals, and has also published in many broader interest venues. He holds an M.S. and Ph.D. from Stanford University and an undergraduate degree from the University of Virginia.