Question for John Legere, CEO, T-Mobile

1. During the hearing, I shared a concern regarding T-Mobile's current policy of "Out-of-Plan" domestic phone numbers, where T-Mobile Unlimited customers are charged an incremental penny-per-minute for dialing a phone number that has been deemed by T-Mobile to be "Out-of-Plan."

I have concerns that T-Mobile continues to be the only wireless or wireline provider with such a policy, and it seemingly targets specific calling applications, such as FreeConferenceCall.com. The lack of consumer information of this pricing policy is a slippery slope that can seemingly lend itself to frequently increasing the pool of "Out-of-Plan" numbers, a de-facto price increase. It's also my understanding that there is no public notice as to which telephone numbers are "Out-of-Plan" and why such telephone numbers are "Out-of-Plan" and thus, such price increases appear to be done without notice to consumers.

In your testimony, you underscored a going-forward business plan to freeze price increases, and also that the "New T-Mobile" would honor pricing arrangements that pre-exist with Sprint, both on the consumer side, as well as wholesale arrangements such as roaming and MVNO contracts.

Considering your repeated commitments on these issues, will New T-Mobile continue its "Out-of-Plan" domestic phone numbers for Unlimited customers, since Sprint does not have this pricing policy in place today?
