Dear Cindy,

After talking to Philip Lippel as well as the MIT financial aid staff, I recommend that we support the renewal of Section 568. However, we may want to make it clear that we believe that the 568 Group is entering its final transition stage and will have served its purpose after this next 5-7 year extension.

Currently, there are twenty-four 568 member institutions, of which four are Ivy's (Columbia Cornell, Dartmouth and Penn) and nine others COFHE institutions (Amherst, Duke, Georgetown, MIT, Northwestern, Swarthmore, University of Chicago, Wellesley and Williams) and eleven other non-COFHE institutions. Leslie Bridson, our Director of Financial Aid, serves on the Technical Committee. The Group provides MIT financial aid staff with professional development opportunities for jointly discussing and agreeing on principles of need analysis. I do worry that the eleven non-COFHE institutions have institutional resource issues that can lead the group away from establishing sound need analysis principles. An institution can be a part of the 568 Group and be more stringent in how it defines financial need, but not more generous. Harvard, Princeton, Stanford and Yale departed from the 568 Group when they decided not only to be more generous but to be more transparent about the financial aid a family would receive.

I expect that in the future there will be other professional development opportunities for MIT financial aid staff, but we are not there yet. As part of the transition, a cost of $10,000 to fund this renewal, along with our annual 568 Group dues, are reasonable costs to assume for the benefit we derive.

If you have any other questions about the 568 Group, please let me know.

Best,

Betsy

Dear Cindy,

I plan to talk to Philip Lippel in the Washington Office Tuesday morning to confer with him on how realistic it is to think this initiative will be successful. I will share my recommendation with you and Denny after that. I know my financial aid staff believes the 568 Group is important. I am less convinced that it is, especially after Harvard, Princeton and Yale stopped participating years ago.

Best,

Betsy
