

Antoinette T. Bacon

Antoinette T. Bacon is the National Elder Justice Coordinator and an Associate Deputy Attorney General for the United States Department of Justice.

Antoinette is a highly decorated attorney from Cleveland, Ohio, having earned two of the highest awards in the Department of Justice, along with special awards from the IRS, U.S. Postal Service, and U.S. Attorney's Office for her prosecutions of fraud, waste, abuse, and corruption.

She is nationally recognized as one of the country's premier public corruption attorneys for having successfully prosecuted nearly 100 targets and having led one of the largest corruption cases in this country's history. Dubbed the Cuyahoga County Corruption Case, this 9-year investigation involved the prosecution of 60+ public officials and business executives, including a County Commissioner, a County Auditor, a Cleveland City Council member, two sitting judges, nine attorneys (five former prosecutors), two union leaders, and two senior hospital executives. This prosecution inspired an overhaul in Cuyahoga County government.

Prior to serving in the Office of the Deputy Attorney General, Antoinette served as the national White Collar Crime Coordinator at the Executive Office for United States Attorneys.

Antoinette joined the Department of Justice through the Honors Program, as a Trial Attorney in the Antitrust Division, where she investigated international price fixing cartels. Prior to joining the Antitrust Division, Antoinette clerked for the Honorable Henry Coke Morgan, Jr., United States District Judge, Eastern District of Virginia.

Antoinette earned a J.D. from the University of Virginia and a B.A. in Communications, Law, Economics, and Government from American University.
