Currently serves as Senior Counsel for the Thomas More Society, a national non-profit public interest law firm championing life, family, and freedom. Over 30 years' experience litigating religious liberties cases, both civil and criminal, in state and federal courts across the country. Has handled numerous cases from trial court to the highest appellate courts, including the U.S. Supreme Court.

He was involved in all of the Biden Administration's recent criminal prosecutions of pro-life advocates under FACE – United States v. Handy in Washington, D.C., United States v. Gallagher in Nashville, Tennessee, and United States v. Zastrow in Detroit, Michigan. He has litigated over a dozen FACE cases since its enactment in 1994 and is still currently litigating five such cases. Together with his colleagues at the Thomas More Society, they have litigated more FACE cases than any law firm in America.
