

Rocky Cole, COO and Co-FounderBio

Rocky Cole is the co-founder and COO of iVerify, a cyber security company focused on securing mobile phones. He previously served as a Senior Program Manager at Google, where he built technologies to promote an open and free internet, hardening Google surfaces against fraud, abuse, and cyber intrusions. He also served as a strategy consultant at Deloitte, working with both federal and commercial clients to streamline their operations. Rocky started his career at the National Security Agency in Fort Meade, Maryland, conducting Computer Network Operations and intelligence analysis. He attended The University of Georgia -- and remains a proud Georgia Bulldog! -- and Georgetown's Walsh School of Foreign Service.