75,000 NONCITIZENS are called for jury duty in New Jersey EVERY YEAR.

It's clear New Jersey's government databases are unreliable in ensuring only Americans are voting in AMERICAN elections and serving in jury pools.

75,000 noncitizens called for jury duty in New Jersey each year

About 75,000 noncitizens are summoned for jury duty in New Jersey each year, based on data from three state government agencies, including the Motor Vehicle Commission — a stunning figure that widens the scope of a growing controversy over government databases that may incorrectly identify noncitizens as eligible voters and jurors.
