

Mathew Lira has a unique mixture of experiences in government, national campaigns and the private sector; his career has been centered at the cross-section of government, politics and the emerging digital economy. Throughout his career, Lira has earned a reputation for building bipartisan coalitions that deliver meaningful progress in pursuit of a more efficient, effective and accountable government.

Matt is currently a partner at Hangar Capital, an investment firm focused on leveraging emerging technology to create solutions to our Nation's challenges. Previously, Matt served as the Special Assistant to the President for Innovation Policy at the White House Office of American Innovation. On Capitol Hill, Matt served as a Senior Advisor to then-House Majority Leader Kevin McCarthy and then-House Majority Leader Eric Cantor. In 2015, Matt served as an Institute of Politics Fellow at the Harvard Kennedy School, focused on the impacts of the digital economy on the Nation's governing institutions.
