

Anne Meeker, Professional Biography

Anne Meeker is Director of Strategic Initiatives at the POPVOX Foundation, a nonprofit supporting innovation in government and civic engagement. Prior to joining the POPVOX Foundation, she served as an IDEA Fellow with the Ohio State University's Institute for Democratic Engagement and Accountability on the Connecting to Congress initiative. She started her career in the district office of Congressman Seth Moulton [D, MA] as an intern and worked up to Director of Constituent Services, where she managed a team of casework staff and worked to use data and technology to deliver better constituent services to constituents of the Massachusetts 6th district. She holds a bachelor's degree in Anthropology from the University of Oxford (St. Hugh's College), and an MSc in History from the London School of Economics, where she wrote her thesis on presidential memoir. She is also a proud native Clevelander, and will take any opportunity to cheerlead for the 'Land.
