

Amy O'Leary is the Executive Director of SEMCOG, a regional planning organization with over 180 local government members. SEMCOG develops plans and supports local implementation in the areas of transportation, economic development, and environment. In its role as Southeast Michigan's Metropolitan Planning Organization, SEMCOG develops the long-range Regional Transportation Plan and Transportation Improvement Program, which invests over $5 billion in the transportation system. Amy also serves as the President of the Metropolitan Affairs Coalition (MAC), a public-private partnership of business, labor, government, and education leaders focused on improving the prosperity in Metropolitan Detroit. Amy holds a Master in Planning from Eastern Michigan University and attended Harvard University's Program for Senior Executives in State and Local Government at the John F. Kennedy School of Government. She is a Certified Association Executive and holds a certificate in Diversity and Inclusion from Cornell University. She holds leadership positions at Six Rivers Regional Land Conservancy, the Detroit Area Agency on Aging, and the Executive Directors Council of the National Association of Regional Councils.
