

Steve Woelfel is President and CEO of Jefferson Lines, a 96 year old motorcoach company operating in 13 states throughout America's heartland. His background includes general management and financial management at fortune 500 companies as well as experience as a certified public accountant. He earned his bachelor's degree from St. Johns University.