Executive Vice President, Government Relations
CRH Americas

Ryan Lindsey serves as the Executive Vice President of Government Relations for CRH Americas. In his role, he oversees federal and state advocacy as well as political engagement for the company in North America. CRH, the leading supplier in building materials solutions, employs 79,800 people across 28 countries and is committed to building, connecting and improving our world. Its North American operations, CRH Americas, is comprised of Americas Materials and Building Products, operates across North America with 47,400 employees and 2,008 locations.

Ryan joined CRH in 2011 following the acquisition of his family's business. Since then, Ryan has held various roles within the organization, beginning as an Area Manager for Construction Operations then transitioning to Government Relations in 2014. In 2015, Ryan successfully developed and launched the "ENGAGE. EDUCATE. IMPACT." program, a comprehensive platform designed to foster political advocacy and grassroots engagement among CRH employees.

Ryan earned his MBA from Pittsburg State University and a BBA in Marketing from Hardin-Simmons University. He spent 11 years as a scout for NBA's Utah Jazz. Ryan resides in Waco, Texas with his wife Jennifer (a partner at Beard Kultgen Law Firm) and son William (17). He is actively involved in his community, serving on the boards of the University of Mary-Hardin Baylor, Vanguard College Prep School, and BSW Hillcrest Medical Center.
