

Brandon Farris is vice president of domestic policy at the National Association of Manufacturers.

Before joining the NAM, Farris was the head of federal government relations for The Chemours Company, where he was honored as a 2022 top lobbyist by the National Institute for Lobbying & Ethics. Previously, Farris served as assistant general counsel for Arkema as well as senior counsel for government relations for the Saudi Basic Industries Corporation. After serving in the Marine Corps Reserve, he began his career in Washington as a Bryce Harlow Foundation Fellow at the George Washington University School of Law while working on the U.S. House Committee on Agriculture.