

Dr. Courtney LaFountain is an Acting Director at the Government Accountability Office in the Financial Markets and Community Investment team. She grew up in New Mexico, and she earned her bachelors, masters, and doctoral degrees in economics from Washington University in Saint Louis. After graduate school, she spent a few years as an assistant professor at the University of Texas in Arlington and then joined GAO in 2009. Before joining the Financial Markets and Community Investment team, she served as a specialist in economics, where she contributed economic analyses to audits on a range of topics.