

Cimino Bio

Anthony Cimino is Vice President and Head of Policy at Carta, a private markets infrastructure company that supports more than 50,000 private companies with 2.4 million stakeholders and $3 trillion in equity. We provide fund administration services for nearly 7,000 funds and fund vehicles, representing $150 billion in assets under administration.

In his role, Anthony oversees the team charged with policy development, advocacy, and engagement to expand equity ownership and bolster private markets. Carta's policy team has shaped policy to increase access to capital for businesses and expanded investor access to this growing asset class. His team has also helped Carta navigate product approvals and shaped the Carta platform to help clients navigate the changing policy and regulatory landscape. The policy team has also helped Carta launch its Equity Essentials, an initiative to provide foundational equity education to empower employees to maximize the equity they have earned.

Prior to joining Carta, Anthony served as Head of Government Affairs at the Bank Policy Institute, a trade association that represents the nation's leading banks. During his time there he led efforts to tailor the bank regulatory environment, pass policy changes to the Bank Secrecy Act, and reauthorize the Terrorism Risk Insurance Program. He also helped restructure the trade association and guide it through a merger.

Anthony started his career working for the Committee on Financial Services of the US House of Representatives, where he helped Congress navigate the financial crisis and resulting regulatory reform, the Dodd-Frank Act. He has an MBA from Johns Hopkins, and an undergraduate degree from UCLA.
