

Alan M. Crawford is President and owner of Rangaire Manufacturing Company.

Alan is the youngest of three boys raised by a stay-at-home mom and public-school teacher father. He attended public schools and held various jobs working his way through college, ultimately receiving an Industrial Engineering degree from Texas Tech University. After entering industry, he returned to Texas Tech and received his MBA which allowed him to progress through various positions in manufacturing engineering and operations management.

Prior to purchasing Rangaire from his employer (its parent company, Broan-NuTone LLC), Alan spent 10 years in engineering and operations management for Broan-NuTone. He has more than 30 years' experience in manufacturing in a wide range of industries including metal fabrication, semiconductors, and telecom.

Alan has been married to his high-school sweetheart for 36 years, is the proud father of two children and delighted grandfather of two beautiful granddaughters.