

Aissatou Barry-Fall joined the Lower East Side People's Federal Credit Union as a part-time Teller in 1991. Her commitment, dedication, and hard work have been beneficial to the Credit Union and the communities they serve.

She is an experienced team player and leader and has fulfilled multiple roles at the LESPFCU, including, but not limited to Head Teller, Fiscal Officer, Operations Manager, Chief Financial officer and now CEO. Her qualifications and personal traits align with the Credit Union's needs and Mission.

She pursued a degree in Linguistic at the University of Gamal Abdel Naser in Conakry, Guinea. During her tenure at the LESPFCU, in 2001, she graduated from the College of Staten Island with a Bachelor of Science degree. She also graduated from the CUNA Management School in 2005.

Aissatou migrated to the United States from Guinea, West Africa; a country with a diverse community, multi- cultural and religious background. This country is a mirror of most of the communities the LESPFCU serve.

Aissatou is fluent in five languages. She currently lives in Staten Island, married for 33 years, mother of five and grandmother of six.