

Stan Meiburg is the retired Executive Director Emeritus of the Andrew Sabin Center for Environment and Sustainability at Wake Forest University. His three years as Executive Director of the Center followed five years as the Director of Graduate Studies in Sustainability and a 39-year career with the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency.

From 2014 to 2017, Dr. Meiburg served as EPA's Acting Deputy Administrator, the agency's second highest position. He also served in senior career positions as EPA's Deputy Regional Administrator in the Southeast and South Central regions of the United States, as well as EPA offices in Research Triangle Park and in Washington, DC. He received EPA's Distinguished Career Service Award, EPA's Gold Medal for his work on Clean Air Act Amendments; the Commander's Award for Public Service from the Department of the Army; the Distinguished Federal Executive award; and the John W. Gaston Award for Excellence in Public Service Management from the American Society for Public Administration.

Dr. Meiburg served on the North Carolina Environmental Management Commission between 2017 and 2021 (Chair 2019-2021) and is a Fellow of the National Academy of Public Administration. He holds a B.A. degree from Wake Forest, and M.A. and Ph.D. degrees from The Johns Hopkins University.