

Kevin Bardosh, PhD, is a medical anthropologist affiliated with the School of Public Health, University of Washington in the US and Edinburgh Medical School in the UK. He is also the Director of Research at Collateral Global, a UK-charity focused on researching the impact of Covid policies around the world. He has worked in more than 20 countries around the world on infectious disease research and control programs, including in the response to Zika, Ebola and Covid-19.