

Loyce Pace, MPH

Assistant Secretary for Office of Global Affairs (OGA)

U.S. Department of Health and Human Services

Loyce Pace is Assistant Secretary for Global Affairs at the Department of Health & Human Services and a U.S. liaison to the Commission. In her current role, Ms. Pace is responsible for advancing the U.S. international health agenda through multilateral and bilateral forums. She serves as U.S. liaison to and oversees HHS' engagement with foreign governments and international institutions as well policymaking bodies such as the G7, G20, United Nations General Assembly (UNGA), and World Health Assembly. Reporting directly to the Secretary of Health & Human Services (HHS), she is the Office of Global Affairs' lead on setting priorities and policies that promote American public health agencies and interests worldwide.

Previously, she served as President & Executive Director of the Global Health Council (GHC) and was also a member of the Biden-Harris Transition COVID-19 Advisory Board. At GHC, she advocated for increased federal investments in global health in the face of budget cuts to the U.S. Centers for Disease Control & Prevention, the United States Agency for International Development, and the World Health Organization (WHO).

Prior to her role at GHC, Ms. Pace spent over a decade working with community-based organizations and grassroots leaders in countries across Africa and Asia on campaigns calling for person-centered access to health. Additionally, she has held positions on various global and regional advisory committees and boards that focus on equity and inclusion. Ms. Pace holds a Bachelor's degree with Honors in human biology from Stanford University and a Master's degree in international health & human rights with the distinction of Delta Omega from Johns Hopkins Bloomberg School of Public Health.
