Amy Webb

Amy Webb was appointed National Legislative Policy Advisor of the nation's fourth largest veterans' service organization in June 2016. In this capacity she provides legislative analysis and recommendations; regularly researches and writes Congressional testimony; is responsible for working with AMVETS members to establish and pursue annual legislative priorities; develops legislative white papers; and keeps members and leadership apprised of key legislative updates.

Born at Quantico Marine Corps base, Amy was raised by a combat-wounded Marine Corps Vietnam Veteran, and has family members that have served in every conflict back to the Revolutionary War, including her younger brother who is a Marine Corps infantry veteran of Iraq. Both grandfathers were Air Force pilot veterans of WWII, Korea and Vietnam, and her grandmother was a Women Airforce Service Pilot (WASP). Ms. Webb is a passionate veterans' advocate who is honored to serve veterans by working to support them in procuring their earned entitlements.

Amy came to AMVETS after working for nine years at DAV (Disabled American Veterans) in Washington D.C. where she performed extensive legislative research and writing related to veterans' health care issues; prior to that she worked in Real Estate. Amy is the mother of three grown children and lives in Annapolis, Maryland.
