

Gregory John's Bio for Congressional Hearing Submission

Gregory John, an eminent figure in the aviation industry, is the founder and president of Infinity Flight Group, a comprehensive aviation services company headquartered at the Trenton-Mercer Airport in Ewing, New Jersey. Under his visionary leadership, Infinity Flight Group was crafted to meet and exceed the rigorous standards of international airline hiring qualifications, ensuring the highest quality of flight training for its clientele.

With over twenty years of industry experience, Greg has significantly grown Infinity Flight from a modest fleet of three aircraft in 2014 to the Northeast's leading training facility, boasting more than fifty-five modern Cessna trainers by 2021. His success is built on forging strong relationships with customers and strategic partners alike, including notable collaborations with American Airlines and Mercer County Community College (MCCC). Greg's genuine commitment to the success of individuals has facilitated efficient and cost-effective pathways for aviation students and career transitioners, leading them directly to opportunities with the world's largest airlines. His innovative approach has not only benefitted students and colleges but has also contributed to the aviation industry by addressing the pilot shortage challenge.

Greg's aviation journey began as the Director of Business Development at Four Star Air Cargo in San Juan, Puerto Rico, where he played a pivotal role in expanding the company's cargo fleet. He later advanced to Commercial Aviation Services, developing an FAA part 135 operation and managing operations for a freighter aircraft fleet on behalf of British Airways.

A Boston University School of Management alumnus, Greg John holds a Bachelor of Science in Business Administration and has enhanced his expertise through management courses at The Wharton School of Business. He is a distinguished participant and mentor in the Goldman Sachs 10,000 Small Business Program and serves as an Honorary Commander at Joint Base McGuire Dix Lakehurst. There, he shares his aviation passion with military personnel and offers guaranteed career opportunities to aspiring aviators. Greg is a certified Airline Transport Pilot, CFI, CFII, and MEI, holding multiple FAA type-certifications.

As a testament to his profound impact on aviation training and industry standards, Gregory John presents a wealth of knowledge and experience to the congressional hearing, reflecting his dedication to advancing aviation excellence and workforce development.
