

Alison Couch
Owner, Ignite Accounting & Business Advisors

Biography

Alison is the owner of Ignite Accounting and Business Advisors. She has been in public accounting for 18 years and started Ignite Accounting and Business Advisors (formerly Couch Consulting, LLC) in 2013. She completed her Bachelors and Masters Degrees in Accounting at Georgia Southern University in 2004 and 2007, respectively. Her lengthy experience allows her to help clients by using an individualized holistic approach, resulting in the most beneficial decisions and strategies for each small business that her team serves.

Alison is the past president of the Augusta Lunch Leaders group, past treasurer of Girls on the Run, past treasurer of Harlem United Methodist Church, past Board Member of Family Promise of Augusta, Past Urban Redevelopment Authority Commissioner for the City of Harlem, Past Treasurer of 143 Ministries, Inc. Though Alison loves to serve her clients, teammates, and community, her favorite group to spend time with is her family. Her two children and husband are her world.

Alison previously testified at the Georgia field hearing last Congress. She will be able to speak to 1099-K reporting, 199A Small Business Deduction, and other pro-worker, small business tax policy issues.
